

Abstract

For synchronizing one or more receivers (E) to a transmitter (S) within a transmission system, the transmitter (S) inserts a special synchronization train into the data stream. The synchronization train is formed of at least two different symbol sequences (A, B), which are transmitted periodically in alternation.

09937608-030402